How to open blocked sites in android phones

Have you ever searched a website only to find out that it's blocked? While there are numerous reasons this might happen, there are a few sure fixes. I came up with a list of how you can access blocked websites on Android. Cool, right? The internet is a free entity; it's a world all of its own, and it shouldn't have restrictions for others and cater only to their locale; it should be for everyone. The inability (or unwillingness) of a service to overcome geographic boundaries (i.e. geographic restrictions) is one of the reasons why you can't view videos on YouTube. What can you do when you want to access a blocked site on your Android device? That's easy. Changing your DNS or using a Tor browser are a few workarounds. I'll show you how to access blocked websites on Android! Related: AT&T Automatically Blocks Robocalls I'm here to tell you about all the different ways you can bypass geo-blocking, or location-based restrictions and access blocked websites on your Android device. Chances are you've probably already heard of some of these methods. And I can assure you that I've tried and tested all of the following: Method 1: Bypass banned sites with Orbot – Proxy with Tor A little known, yet very effective, free proxy app for accessing blocked websites on Android smartphones and tablets is Orbot. Orbot will encrypt your internet data so you can access blocked websites, messaging and emails without the threat of being monitored or blocked. Step 1: Install the App Download Orbot from the Google Play Store and install it. For rooted devices, you can follow these instructions. App Logo Step 2: Start the app Open the app and power up Tor. Long press the power button Step 3: Install Orweb Next, install the Orweb app, the browser supported by Tor. Now you can freely access all previously blocked websites on your Android device. Orweb Method 2: Access blocked sites with VPN – Hola Free VPN Formerly Hola Unblocker, this VPN app not only accesses blocked websites for Android devices, it also compresses data being sent over the internet. This compression greatly improves your browsing speed. The best part is, for Hola to work you don't need to create any kind of account with them. It's extremely easy to install and use. Step 1: Install the App Go to the Google Play Store, download, and install the Hola Android app. App Logo Step 2: Open the App Open the Hola app and you're done. Hola App Hola comes in with a built-in browser through which you can surf the web. It also lets you open apps that are geographically restricted. Let's say you're in China and you want to watch videos on Netflix, Hulu, or BBC iPlayer. You can install the respective apps and open them through Hola. The same goes for any other app like Spotify, YouTube, and Pandora. Netflix on Hola If you want to download an app that's not available on the Google Play Store, you can search for the application's apk file online and you can install and run it through Hola. For an in-depth overview of the best VPN services you can use to access blocked websites on your Android devices, take a look at a couple of handy guides on how to set up VPN and our list of Best VPN Apps. Method 3: Bypass Blocked Sites with MediaHint MediaHint is geared toward unblocking video and social media channels. (Photo Credit) It's a paid DNS service with the added support of browser extensions, giving its subscribers the power to go around country censorship and geo-restrictions. MediaHint supports a plethora of smart devices from Android to Kindle Fire. For $3.95 a month or approximately $39.50 a year, you can use MediaHint to watch all your favorite, yet frustratingly geo-restricted media on any of your devices. They offer a 7-day free trial. Check out their services here! Method 4: Access blocked sites by manually changing your DNS If your country blocks a specific website, you can bypass geo-blocking and location-based limitations by changing your DNS into Google's Public DNS. But before you do this, get a copy of your current DNS addresses (if any) as you'll need to revert to this if you have problems with changing your DNS. For Android 9 and below, follow these steps: Step 1: Open Settings Enter the Settings menu and then open the Wi-Fi settings. Wi-Fi Settings Step 2: Modify Network Long tap on the network you are connected to. Then tap on "Modify Network." Select Modify Network Step 3: Change IP Settings Check on Advanced Options, then change the IP settings to "Static." IP Settings Step 4: Change the DNS Note your current DNS1 and DNS2 addresses in a secure place. This way you can revert to these changes whenever you might need to. for IPV4 change the settings respectively: for IPV6 use these: 2001:4860:4860::88882001:4860:4860::8844 Change your DNS For Android 9 and higher, Go to Settings > Network and Internet > Advanced > Private DNS Change the private DNS hostname to: "dns.google" then click save. This only works for Android 9 and higher since only these devices support "Private DNS" Frequently Asked Questions What are the reasons for blocked websites on Android?While being unable to access the site that you want is frustrating, we must take into consideration that there are laws and contracts that we need to abide by. Some governments won't allow some sites to be accessed by an entire country or region and some will. Some factors that affect this are religious considerations, signed contract/s between parties involved, and geographical location. Why am I blocked on a certain website but other people are not?Blocked websites are different from location to location. Some might've been in another country so they can access the website that is prohibited in your country. Another factor that might cause this is your internet service providers (ISP). ISPs have different contracts between companies, regions, or countries. Unblocking restricted websites – Unlock the internet Whether we like it or not, all of us have faced that frustrating message, "This content is currently not available in your location." With so many services now geo-restricted and websites blocked by governments and other entities, finding new ways to access content that should be available has become a new industry in of itself. There are countless means to access blocked websites, with the most common being the use of VPNs. The methods above are a few of the most popular options.
