Bobby bones toaster

Moves you still quote on the regular... MEAN GIRLS! Favorite character in the flick ... Gretchen Weiners! The oh so famous scene where she's called out for the "Burn Book" she replies " I don't think my father, the inventor of the toaster strudel, would be too pleased to hear about this" gets me every time! Well now Toaster Strudel has teamed up with Lacey Chabert for her own line of strudels - strawberry & cream cheese or regular strawberry with pink frosting. There's even a contest for your chance at strudels for a year, Mean Girls merch, and a special message from Lacey... cough cough ... Gretchen. Total duration:37 h 20 min Feeling Things with Amy & Kat is a podcast for anyone who's ever had feelings—or wants to. Hosted by Amy Brown and therapist Kat Van Buren, this is a space where nothing is off-limits. From deep reflections on childhood to pop culture obsessions to what’s happening in the world, all feelings, joyful, confusing, and everything in between. At its core, it’s real friends having real conversations about real feelings. Some episodes go deep, some stay light, but all are rooted in curiosity, honesty, and connection. In a world that moves fast, sometimes the most powerful thing we can do is pause... and feel things. The Bobby Bones Show, which originally aired from Austin, Texas, now broadcasts from studios at WSIX-FM in Nashville. Premiere Networks, a subsidiary of iHeartMedia, syndicated the show internationally in Halifax and Manchester, UK. The program is broadcast on weekdays between 5:00 AM and 10:00 AM Central Time with a "Top 30 Countdown" show aired on Saturday mornings and hosted by Bones. Starting in 2019, a new show called "The Women of iHeartCountry", was hosted by Bones's co-host Amy, in which she interviews female counrty stars, and plays only country songs by female country stars. The show is broadcast between 6:00 AM and 7:00 AM Central Time on Sundays. In some radio markets, the show is recorded and heard in the evening; this is especially true in Canada, where it is carried by Bell Media Radio's Pure Country network.[2] The program is also heard nationally via iHeartRadio, iHeartMedia's free all-in-one streaming music and live radio service digital service.[3][4] In June 2014, it was announced that Bobby Bones had signed a long-term contract extension with iHeartMedia (formerly Clear Channel Media and Entertainment).[5] Prior to 2013, The Bobby Bones Show was a morning show for Top 40 stations, also syndicated by Premiere Networks. Jay Shannon was the program director.[6] On July 18, 2011, it was announced that Bones had signed a three-year extension to do mornings for Clear Channel's KHFI-FM Austin, and also signed a deal with Premiere for syndication rights.[7] Bobby Bones is accompanied by co-hosts Lunchbox (Dan Chappel)[8] and Amy (Moffett-Brown).[9] along with Eddie (Garcia), Raymundo (Raymond Slater), Mike D. (Deestro), Morgan #2 (Huelsman), and Abby Anderson.[10] The Raging Idiots is a band which features Bobby Bones and Eddie Garcia from the Bobby Bones Show. The Raging Idiots helped raise money for earthquake relief in Haiti, the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, and other charities. In 2013, after the BBS moved to Nashville, they were asked to perform in a charity event which resulted in their first public appearance. Their first concert outside of Nashville was in Wichita, Kansas. They have played over 40 charity shows and have raised over $1.5 million for charities.[11] On June 2, 2015, The Raging Idiots signed a record deal with Black River Entertainment. They released their debut album "The Critics Give It 5 Stars" which was a number one record on the comedy charts. From the album, the singles were: "If I Was Your Boyfriend" and "Fishing With My Dad". The Raging Idiots released an EP titled "The Next Episode EP" where the lead single "Namaste" was a number one comedy song. Followed by "Chick-fil-A (...But It's Sunday)" which reached number three on the comedy charts.[12] On April 2, 2020, The Raging Idiots released a new album "Bobby Bones & the Raging Idiots (Live in Little Rock)" which featured songs recorded during the 2019 Bobby Bones & The Raging Idiots Tour.[13] During the October 24, 2014 episode of The Bobby Bones Show, a segment discussed a test of the Emergency Alert System (EAS) that had interrupted a broadcast of Game 2 of the 2014 World Series on Nashville Fox affiliate WZTV. A clip was played of the 2011 national EAS test; due to how EAS operates, this "engaged the EAS equipment of certain other EAS participants" to re-transmit the Emergency Action Notification (EAN) from the test. In particular, the false test spread via outlets (includng AT&T U-verse systems in several markets) that had not configured their EAS decoders to reject EAN messages that did not match the current date. In May 2015, iHeartMedia was fined $1 million by the FCC for playing EAS tones on-air outside of an emergency alert, and was directed to implement a three-year compliance plan, including the removal of EAS tones or any similar sounds from its audio libraries in order to prevent a similar incident.[14][15][16] The Bobby Bones Show won the National On-Air Personality Award at the ACM Awards in 2014, 2016, 2018, and 2020. They won a CMA Award for National Personality in 2017 and 2019.[17] On November 2, 2017, Bobby Bones was inducted into the National Radio Hall of Fame. He is the youngest inductee to ever receive this honor. ^ Huelsman, Morgan (November 20, 2019). "Meet Our New Executive Producer Scuba Steve | The Bobby Bones Show [Bobby Bones]". He was the winner of season 27 of Dancing with the Stars with partner Sharna Burgess. He has also written two New York Times best sellers. Bones has also released a number of country music albums through Black River Entertainment. Bones was born in Hot Springs, Arkansas, on April 2, 1980, and raised in the small community of Mountain Pine, Arkansas.[1] He has said his mother became pregnant with him at age 15, when his father was 17.[3] He was raised by his mother and maternal grandmother. His biological father was with him until the age of five, but then left the family.[4] Bones began dreaming of a radio career around the age of 5. His mother died at age 49 after battling addiction problems in 2014.[5] He grew up poor, and often viewed radio as a way of escaping poverty.[4] Bones began his radio career at age 17 at the campus station of Henderson State University, KSWH-FM "The Pulse". He graduated with a B.A. in Radio/Television from Henderson in 2002.[citation needed] While still in college, Bones went to work as a station hand at KLAZ in Hot Springs, Arkansas, but was put on the air within a few days of being hired. A manager there gave him the choice of going on the air as Bobby Z or Bobby Bones of which he chose the latter.[5] Bones' first full-time radio contract paid him $17,000. In 2002, Bones was hired by Q100/KQAR in Little Rock, Arkansas. He then worked for radio station (KLAL), which led to his hosting The Bobby Bones Show on KHFI-FM in Austin, Texas. According to The Washington Post, Bones is different from typical radio DJs, as he doesn't have the "classic, booming radio DJ voice".[6] Despite being commonly referred to as such, Bones does not refer to himself as a DJ. Bones was originally hired for the evening shift on the KHFI-FM and was soon moved to mornings. While in Austin, he met two of his future co-hosts, Lunchbox (in a bar) and Amy (in a Culver's). Bones believed in Amy and put her on the air immediately.[7] His executive producer at the time, Alayna Messer, was previously an intern on the show. Over ten years, the show built its audience into the top-rated morning show in Austin[8] and was syndicated in a few regional markets. At the height of his popularity, Bones was offered a job outside of radio but ultimately chose to remain with Clear Channel (now iHeart Media). In 2012, Clear Channel moved Bones and his show from Austin with its Top 40 format to Nashville and a country music format while taking The Bobby Bones Show nationwide.[7] Bones took over the slot hosted by longtime DJ Gerry House.[9] who retired in 2010. Bones now broadcasts from the WSIX-FM studios in Nashville on weekday mornings from 5:00 a.m. to 10 a.m. (CT). His co-host is Amy, and features Producer Eddie, Lunchbox, Raymundo, Morgan Number 2, Mike D., Abby, and Scuba Steve. The Bobby Bones Show has become a regular interview stop for top country music stars and even artists/celebrities outside the genre of country.[10] Luke Bryan, John Mayer, Taylor Swift, Garth Brooks, Ed Sheeran, Blake Shelton, Tim McGraw, Lady Antebellum, Jason Aldean, Dierks Bentley, and more have been featured in interviews on the morning show. In February 2013, The Bobby Bones Show was nationally syndicated through iHeart Media-owned Premiere Networks[11] and was made available via iHeartRadio.com and the iHeartRadio mobile app. The show is currently heard on more than 150 radio stations in the U.S., Canada, and UK.[12] The Bobby Bones Show has an estimated audience of nearly 9.2 million listeners a week. Bones also hosts the weekly "Country Top 30 with Bobby Bones," carried on over 100 radio stations nationwide.[13] As part of the iHeart Media family, Bones has been tapped to host, present, and even perform at the annual iHeartRadio Country Festival held in Austin, Texas, iHeartRadio Music Festival held in Las Vegas, Nevada and the annual iHeartRadio Music Awards in Los Angeles, California.[14] In October 2014, Bones accidentally triggered the Emergency Alert System by playing EAS tones during an on-air rant about an erroneous EAS test interrupting coverage locally of the 2014 World Series on Fox affiliate WZTV. The EAS tones would have only triggered the EAS issuance in Nashville, but since the show was in syndication, the signal cascaded through the show's nationwide affiliates, and caused AT&T U-verse boxes nationwide to lock up with the erroneous test.[15] In May 2015, Bones's employer iHeartMedia paid a $1 million FCC fine due to the incident and removed all EAS sound effects from their nationwide sound library to prevent a recurrence.[16] Bones appeared in the 2009 feature film, Bandslam, with Vanessa Hudgens. He has also appeared on the ABC drama Nashville and has been a guest host with Kelly Ripa on Live! with Regis and Kelly.[17] In 2012 Bones was part of the Fox Sports Radio lineup, hosting the weekend sports talk program Roddick and Bones with tennis star Andy Roddick, airing Saturdays from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. Eastern Time on nearly 300 radio stations.[18] Bones is also the host of the podcast "The Bobbycast" where he interviews singers/songwriters of all genres[19] which The Washington Post dubbed as a "treasure trove of unusually candid anecdotes." [20] He has also launched his own podcast network, the Nashville Podcast Network.[citation needed] On May 17, 2016, he released his first book entitled Bare Bones, I'm Not Lonely If You're Reading This Book. [21] In 2018, Bones was a guest mentor for season sixteen of American Idol (the first to air on ABC) during the top 24 round. On November 6, 2018, it was announced Bones would become a full-time mentor for the series beginning in season seventeen.[22] During an episode which aired April 8, 2019, Bones served as guest host, as host Ryan Seacrest was sick and missed the taping.[23] In June 2019, Bones filmed an episode of Running Wild with Bear Grylls in Norway. The episode aired on January 14, 2020.[24] He was a judge of Topgolf's original series Who Will Rock You. He signed an overall deal with BBC Studios.[25] Breaking Bobby Bones, on the National Geographic Channel began airing in 2021. In each episode, Bones meets a real person doing a "real" job or sport, works with them to learn how to do it, and is critiqued on his performance. At the end of each episode, Bones does something special for week's guest that will improve their life, or help them with their career or other goals.[citation needed] On December 31, 2021, Bones, along with Rachel Smith of Entertainment Tonight, hosted New Year's Eve Live: Nashville's Big Bash. It was broadcast live from Nashville on CBS.[citation needed] In 2022, Bones hosted the USA Network competition series Snake in the Grass.[26] In September 2018, Bones was announced as one of the celebrities to compete on the 27th season of Dancing with the Stars, being paired with the professional dancer Sharna Burgess. Despite the second lowest scores for a couple in the final 4, the couple made it to the finals, and ended up winning the competition.[27] Week # Dance/Song Judges' score Total Result Inaba Goodman Tonioli 1 Jive / "T-R-O-U-B-L-E" 7 6 7 20 Safe 2 Foxtrot / "Theme from New York, New York" Quickstep / "That Old Black Magic" 77 66 76 2019 Safe 3 Contemporary / "A Million Dreams" 8 7 8 23 Safe 4 Trio Cha-cha-cha / "U Can't Touch This" 7 6 7 20 Safe 5 Waltz / "Part of Your World" 7 7 7 21 No Elimination 6 Argentine Tango / "Mr. Sandman" 8 7 7 22 Safe 7 Viennese Waltz / "Can't Help Falling in Love" Team Freestyle / "9 to 5" 810 89 810 2429 Safe 8Seminfinals Salsa / "G.D.F.R." Trump had registered the phrase for "political action committee services" but was for its use on hats, t-shirts, duffel bags, and other apparel and accessories that Bones now had the rights to. Two days later, on August 7, Bones tweeted, "hey @realDonaldTrump, if you donate 100k to @stjude, i will give you your clothing trademark back, thanks! - Bobby". Bones later tweeted an image on October 29 of a check from The Trump Organization for an undisclosed amount, stating it would go to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital and that Trump could "have [his] slogan back".[29] On January 3, 2017, Bones announced he was considering a run for governor of Arkansas in the 2018 election.[30] On March 14, 2017, Bones announced he was not running.[31] In July 2021, Bones married Caitlin Parker.[32] For four years running, from 2004 to 2008, Bones was named Best Radio Personality by the Austin Music Awards, presented by The Austin Chronicle and XSXW. The Bobby Bones Show also won Best Radio Program 2007-2008.[33] On April 6, 2014, Bones, Amy, and Lunchbox won their first Academy of Country Music Award for National On-Air Personality of the Year, just nine months into Bones's first year in country music.[34] Bones became the youngest ever inductee into the National Radio Hall of Fame during a ceremony on November 2, 2017, at the Museum of Broadcast Communications in Chicago.[35] The University of Arkansas awarded Bobby with an honorary doctorate at their Spring 2022 commencement ceremonies.[36] Title Album details Peak chart positions Sales US Country[37] US[38] US Comedy[39] US Indie[40] The Critics Give It 5 Stars Release date: March 18, 2016 Label: Black River Entertainment 4 41 1 3 US: 12,700[41] Title Album details Peak chart positions US[42] USKid[43] US Indie[44] The Raging Kidiots: Kidly Up Release date: November 2, 2015 Label: Black River Entertainment 64 3 2 The Next Episode Release Date: August 18, 2017 Year Single Peak positions Album US Country Airplay[45] US Comedy Digital[46] 2016 "We Can't Stand Each Other"(with Carrie Underwood) — 8 The Critics Give It 5 Stars "Every Day Is a Good Day" — 10 "Starbucks" — 14 "Fishin' with My Dad" 60 20 2017 "Namaste" — 1 The Next Episode "Chick-fil-A (...
