News from Avidemux 2.7.6 2.7.6 2.7.6 Launched with integration of the AVI decoder and more Avidemux 2.7.6 features official inscriptions, among them the integration of the AVI decoder, the ffmpeg specifications, corrections for mp3 and more. New decoders and encoders have been implemented in this new version of the software release, of which stand out the AVI decoder recorded in libaom, as well as the added VP9 encoder based on libvpx. This version also stands out the new support for Vorbis in the MP4 multiplexer, the new HE-AAC and HE-AACv2 profiles in the FDK-AAC encoder. As well as support for external audio tracks in DTS format, enhanced equipped with inter-interlaced video sequence. And the correction of mono MP3 audio tracks in MP4 files mistakenly identified as stereo, along with the enhancement of H.264 video sequence in which the parameters be changed quickly. In connection with the corrections, we highlight the attempt to eliminate the tension of timestamps in MP4 files created by previous versions of Avidemux. Of the other changes that stand out in this new version: Added deinterlacer with resizing function using VA-API-based hardware (Linux only). FFMpeg subscribed to the 4.2.3. The maximum supported resolution was applied to 4096 to 4096. An warning displayed if the cutoff points in H.264 and HEVC video streams can cause more playback problems, even if they are included in keyframes. Added support for TS files earlier than 13:15:36. Instead of turning off the track, the DTS format DTS-HD MA now is supported in TS files. Correction of rounding of timestamps, leading to the fix V pseudoFR (with heavy frame rate), even if the source for CFR. Supports LPCM audio in mp4 multiplexer by changing silence to MOV multiplexing mode. To learn more about Avidemux, access the release note.
