The UK's fourth-largest supermarket recently invited the public to suggest areas most in need of an Aldi store. Aldi has since analysed thousands of suggestions to help shape its store search for the years ahead. The latest list of priority locations where Aldi is actively looking for sites includes: Braintree, Essex Bromley, Greater London Chesham, Buckinghamshire Balby, Doncaster, South Yorkshire Ealing, Greater London Ferndown, Dorset Hitchin, Hertfordshire Kenilworth, Warwickshire Kirkby, Merseyside Largs, North Ayrshire Pickering, North Yorkshire Ponteland, Northumberland South Croydon, Greater London South Shields, Tyne and Wear Tadcaster, North Yorkshire Uckfield, East Sussex Warwick, Warwickshire Wellingborough, Northamptonshire Witney, Oxfordshire Worthing, West Sussex Aldi currently has more than 1,050 stores across the UK and is working towards a long-term target of 1,500. Over the summer, 10 new stores are set to open in areas including Caterham in Surrey, Sheffield in South Yorkshire, and Fulham Broadway in London. This expansion is part of a £650 million investment this year alone, helping Aldi bring its unbeatable value to even more communities. Jonathan Neale, Managing Director of National Real Estate at Aldi UK, said: "We want to make high-quality, affordable food accessible to everyone, and that means opening new stores in the communities that need them most. The response from the public has been invaluable in helping us identify where demand is greatest, and where we need to focus our efforts on finding the sites that can become new stores." Each site should be able to accommodate a 20,000 sq ft store with around 100 parking spaces. Ideally the location will be near a main road with good visibility and access. The supermarket says it is also on the lookout for sites to accommodate its Aldi Local store format in Central London in zones one and two, which typically have a minimum size of 5,000 sq ft of trading space, along with an additional 3,000 sq ft of ancillary space. Anybody who has a site that may fit Aldi's requirements should contact realestateacquisitions@aldi.co.uk. The UK will get 10 new Aldi stores this summer(Image: Bloomberg via Getty Images)Aldi is set to open 10 new supermarket stores this summer with a further 30 set to undergo a major "refresh". The discount supermarket chain - which now has over 1,050 stores - will be opening stores across the country in areas such as Oldbury in the West Midlands, Fulham Broadway in London and Brighouse in West Yorkshire. The openings come as part of Aldi's long-term plans to open 1,500 supermarket stores in the UK This year, the supermarket will be investing £650million in expanding its store estate. This year, Aldi plans to open 40 new UK stores.Aldi has not confirmed exactly when stores will open. The Mirror has approached Aldi for this information and will update this article when we know more.Each new store opening will create around 40 new jobs, paying at least £12.75 and £14.05 within the M25.From September 2025, Aldi workers are set for another pay increase to £12.85 per hour nationally and £14.16 per hour for those within the M25.Jonathan Neale, Managing Director of National Real Estate at Aldi UK, said: "At Aldi, our goal is to ensure everyone has access to high-quality food at unbeatable prices, and we're committed to achieving that with our ambitious store opening plans."We're targeting 40 new store openings in 2025, while many of our current stores will also be getting a refresh to enhance the customer experience, meaning we can consistently offer the best value for money to even more shoppers across the UK."READ MORE: High street chain to shut another store in weeks ahead of eight other closuresREAD MORE: Nostalgic beer from the 90s returns to UK supermarkets after almost 30-year hiatusAs supermarkets chop and change their deals on offer, the Mirror has launched its very own Money WhatsApp community where you'll get all the latest food shopping advice and money-saving tips straight to your phone.We'll send you the latest breaking updates and exclusives all directly to your phone.
