Complimentary photo: Maskot/Getty Images Years ago, when you wanted to get even the simplest website up and running, you need to learn coding languages to program your site and make it look the way you want. And while building a website completely from scratch still requires these skills, you do not need to understand programming and encoding to make a website these days. Numerous companies have created site builders that help you design a website with the pages and content you want using customizable and pre-programmed models. No matter your skill level, you can create your own website using one of these online tools. With so manyAvailable, it can be difficult to find the right one for your needs. Some, however, are distinguished above the rest because of their ease of use and the features available. Discover some of the top-rated websites development platforms to find the most comfortable option with. Wix is one of the most recognized site builders around with more than 180 million users around the world. It offers a wide selection of highly customizable models, themes and web projects to help you get your website quickly and easily, even when you don't have a lot of technical know-how. The The plan is equipped with a wide range of functionality, SEO controls and no page limit. While free Wix websites come with ads, they are quite unobtrusive. Paid plans allow the removal of ads, custom URLs, analysis and more for companies and individuals in the same way. Overall, Wix is better for users who want to focus on designing a simple, elegant and captivating website rather than encoding anything, even if there are more advanced features available for those who wish to use them. If you want to go all-up a career as a blogger, then Squarede could be your best option for building a site. It has a wide selection of themes and features that are designed specifically with blogging and other simpler needs in mind. Squarede is ideal for creating sites that are strongly dependent on visuals, especially when it comes to subjects such as fashion, beauty, travel, jewelry, and arts and crafts. It also makes the setting of your website for mobile-device compatibility, which can be useful if you need to update your blog often. Photo Courtesy: Sprarestace While Squarede makes it easy to go heavy to images, it also offers ecommerce models if you are looking to run an online store. Once again, thanks to the emphasis of the manufacturer on the images, these models put the images of the front product and center in front of consumers. Even ecommerce models are automatically optimized for mobile devices. Sprarespace has monthly and annual subscription plans and can also help with other aspects of execution of your site, such as e-mail marketing, logo design and appointment planning. Word Press is a virtual phenomenon in your right, and does not need an introduction.
