Cedric Brown K-Quick Soundwave Meez Elite Ron Gilmore DJ Grumble J Dilla Dreamville Records chronology Revenge of the Dreamers(2014) Revenge of the Dreamers II(2015) Revenge of the Dreamers III(2019) Revenge of the Dreamers II is the second compilation album by American record label Dreamville Records and was released on December 8, 2015. The album includes contributions by Dreamville artists. J. Cole, Bas, Cozz, Omen, Lute, and Ari Lennox.[1][2] Producers on this album include, J. Cole, Cedric Brown, K-Quick, Soundwave, Meez, Elite, Ron Gilmore Jr., DJ Grumble, and J Dilla. Background On December 12, 2015, posters promoting a surprise Dreamville concert were seen in subway stations and local stores in New York, NY. The concert crawl kicked off at Drum, followed by a Cake Shop appearance, and concluded with an encore at SOB's. The idea of the series, Cole said, was "to get back to the sense of underground and raw musical talent, and celebrating artists with a true, uncensored craft." [3] The tracks "Grow" and "Tabs" are found on Cozz's mixtape, Nothin' Personal (2016). "Housewives" and "Night Job" are featured on Bas' album Too High to Riot (2016). "Backseat" is featured on Ari Lennox's EP Pho (2016). "Still Slummin'" was featured on Lute's debut studio album West1996 pt. 2 (2017). Critical reception Professional ratingsReview scoresSourceRatingPitchfork6.2/10[4] Pitchfork gave the compilation a 6.2 out of 10 saying "Fumbled legacy-building though it is, Dreamers is not without its bright spots. The tape introduces the label's two newest signees; the Washington, D.C.-bred singer Ari Lennox and lute, a rapper from Charlotte who joins Cole in representing North Carolina. Each artist contributes one song here, both of which are among the best on the tape; lute's Dilla-cribbing "Still Slummin'" in particular is superb, throwing you immediately into his world and dispensing plaintive, delightfully un-cinematic notes." [4] Yoh Phillips from DJBooth said "J. Cole has surrounded himself with artists that are passionate. You can hear it, they want this, a quality they all share. It's weird, I remember watching J. Cole come up, no pun intended. Part of his success is the story of his struggle, going from North Carolina to the big city with a dream to make it as a rapper. It's a story that anyone can relate to." [5] Track listing No.TitleWriter(s)Producer(s)Length1."Folgers Crystals" (J. Cole)Jermaine ColeAnthony ParrinoEliteJ. Cole2:232."Night Job" (Bas featuring J.
